DocuShare 7's new Content Rules Manager

With a little help from your friends at Criteria First

Content Rules step you through a set of dialogs allowing you to establish workflows essential to good business process management (BPM). Content Rules are included in DocuShare Enterprise and available as an add-on to DocuShare Standard. DocuShare 7 helps you manage content rules more easily by providing you with a new centralized Content Rules Manager feature. All content rules throughout your DocuShare server can be accessed by logging in as a DocuShare site administrator. Content administrators don't have access to this new resource. If you've created a rule for Collection C that you'd also like to use in Collection D, just copy the rule to the new collection. You should see this new feature on your classic DocuShare homepage once logged in as a site administrator.

Clicking on Content Rules Management presents a listing of all the rules on your site.

£0.5	Approval required for invoice under $2500 (Subscription-499)	C(Collection-1088)	Something added	This container and all levels of contents	dcrews	•••
$$$ $$$	Approval with annotations required for invoice $2500 and over (Subscription-500)	C(Collection-1088)	Something added	This container and all levels of contents	dcrews	•••
£03	Approved (Subscription-501)	C(Collection-1088)	Properties edited	This container and all levels of contents	dcrews	•••
£055	Approved by CFO (Subscription-502)	C(Collection-1088)	Properties edited	This container and all levels of contents	dcrews	•••
$$$$	Approved without authorization (Subscription-504) Signing off on an invoice whose amount is greater than their authorization allows.	C(Collection-1088)	Properties edited	This container and all levels of contents	dcrews	•••
£03	Disapproved (Subscription-505)	C(Collection-1088)	Properties edited	This container and all levels of contents	dcrews	•••

Clicking on the title of the rule or selecting properties from the ellipsis icon (...) allows you to view and edit the rule.

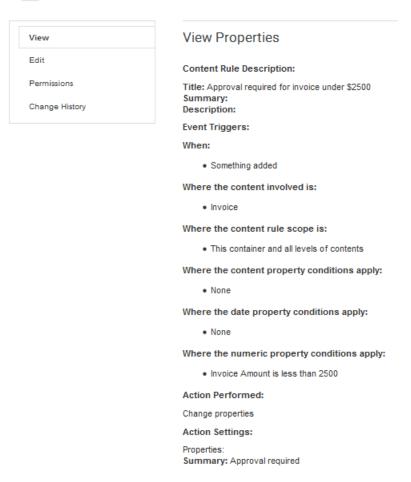

DocuShare 7's new Content Rules Manager

With a little help from your friends at Criteria First

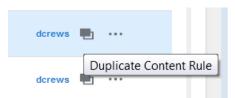

ર્જુ

Approval required for invoice under $2500

To duplicate a rule for use in another collection, click on the overlapping rectangles.

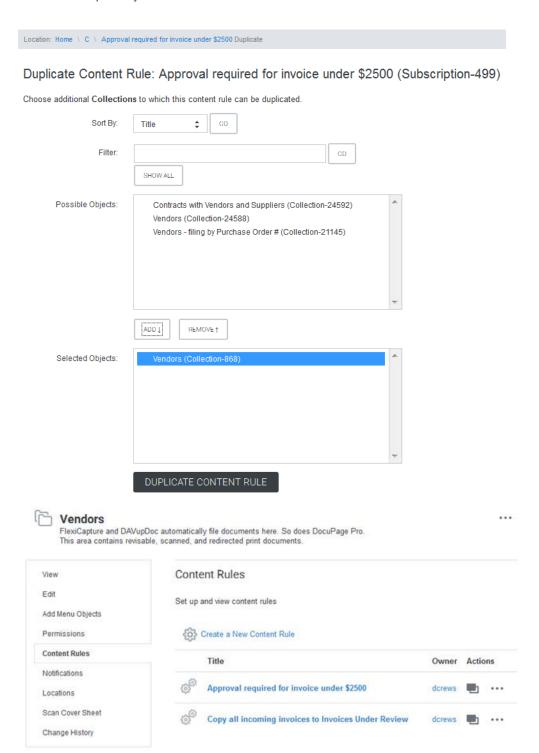

You'll then see an interface which allows you to search for the collection(s) you want to copy it to. In this example I'm copying it to the main Vendors collection. This is great for testing a new rule in a development collection and then copying it to the production collection.

DocuShare 7's new Content Rules Manager

With a little help from your friends at Criteria First

A new handle of Subscription-629 is assigned to the copy of Subscription-499. That's so you're not sharing the rule with the original collection which could cause problems in Collection C if you want to make a change to the rule in Collection D. It can now be edited to change its name or specific functionality for the Vendors collection. Deleting it doesn't affect the original content rule. If you're using content rules, I think you'll appreciate the new capabilities this offers to making implementation easier.

If you'd like more guidance on this or other DocuShare features and functionality, please call us at 972-492-4428 or write to us at support@criteriafirst.com